Expert Witness Directory 2023

I am very pleased to introduce the 2023 published Expert Witness Directory.

I hope you will find it useful for finding experienced experts that will provide essential technical analysis and opinion evidence in court and reports.

All our listed individuals and companies have demonstrated experience and ability in providing expert witness services through an application process and professional references and have agreed to our code of practice. Many also have specific training in report writing and giving evidence in court.

If you need more in-depth information about any of the experts, you will be able to find their full profile detailing qualifications and experience in our recently improved online directory www.lawscot.org.uk/members/expert-witness-directory.

We welcome any suggestions you may have for areas of expertise that you would like to see represented in the directory, or indeed recommendations of experts that you have worked with who may benefit from joining it. My contact details are listed below.

Through our CPD programme, we will continue to provide training for solicitors when instructing expert witnesses, most notably at our annual Personal Injury Conference. If you want to know more about the training, please email CPD@lawscot.org.uk.

Angus Maclauchlan
Head of Marketing
Law Society of Scotland

If you are an expert witness and would like to find out more about how to be listed in the Law Society of Scotland Expert Witness Directory, please email **angusmaclauchlan@lawscot.org.uk**

WHO RATES OUR EXPERTS

Reference system underpins entries for all those listed in this index

The directory is comprised of expert witnesses who live and work in Scotland, and expert witnesses who are based in other areas but are willing to travel to Scotland to work. New experts applying to be listed are required to demonstrate experience and ability in providing expert witness services, normally by providing references from two solicitors holding practising certificates who have instructed them within the last three years.

The reference form asks the referee to rate from “very good” to “very poor” several aspects of the expert witness’s report: accuracy; understanding and analysis of the expert subject area; presentation; and adherence to timescale. Where the expert has presented evidence in court, referees are asked to rate their understanding of the court’s requirements, and the preparation, content and delivery of the expert’s evidence.

Referees are asked whether they have received any adverse comment from the judge or others which gives them cause to doubt the expert’s expertise and whether the referee would use the expert again or recommend the expert to other solicitors.

Where any of the ratings fall below “good”, the references are carefully scrutinised. Other than in very exceptional cases, low ratings lead to the expert’s exclusion from the listing of checked experts. It is always the responsibility of the instructing practitioner to ensure any expert witness possesses the knowledge and experience required for each individual case.

Individual expert witnesses and corporate expert firms

All experts listed in a corporate entry must provide satisfactory references for their individual work as expert witnesses. In addition, all firms must supply the name of a main contact person.

Other referees

One reference must be from a solicitor from the same jurisdiction as the expert witness, who has instructed him/her within the last three years. The other reference, also pertaining to instruction as an expert within the last three years, may be given by:

- practising solicitors/lawyers from Scotland, England or Wales
- a lawyer from another jurisdiction
- an advocate in Scotland or barrister in England, Wales, Ireland or Northern Ireland
- a judge, sheriff or holder of other judicial office.

Cases where references have not been required

There are certain cases where our reference requirements have been superfluous because the expert has already passed through a rigorous accreditation process, which has included proven experience and understanding of expert witness work. In these cases, the Law Society of Scotland may accept experts who have worked for or been vetted by other organisations. The Law Society of Scotland will verify the procedures employed by other organisations to ensure that their procedures meet or exceed our requirements and will verify membership/employment where appropriate.

CODE OF PRACTICE IS EXPERT SUPPORT

Law Society of Scotland Code published to assist expert witnesses engaged by solicitors

The Law Society of Scotland has published a Code of Practice to assist expert witnesses engaged by solicitors in effectively meeting their needs, so those solicitors can better serve their clients and the interests of justice.

The Code applies generally, but there may be additional requirements relating to cases in specialised areas of law. Experts must also comply with the code of conduct of any professional body to which they belong.

At the outset, experts should ensure they receive clear instructions, in writing. In addition to basic information such as names, contact details, dates of incidents, etc., these should cover the type of expertise called for, the questions to be addressed, history of the matter and details of any relevant documents. Experts should also be advised if proceedings have been commenced or if they may be required to give evidence.

When medical reports are involved, it must be highlighted whether the consent of the client or patient has been given, and in cases concerning children, that the paramountcy of the child's welfare may override the legal professional privilege attached to the report and that disclosure might be required.

Instructions should only be accepted when the expert is fully qualified to speak on the matter and has the resources to complete the matter within an agreed timeframe.

Experts should provide terms of business for agreement prior to accepting instructions, including rates of payment or the agreed project fee, and travelling expenses, etc.

Solicitors must be notified, and their agreement obtained, if any part of the assignment will be undertaken by anyone other than the individual instructed.

Client confidentiality must be observed.

Guidance is also given as to the content of the report prepared, which should be in plain English with any technical terms explained.

Independence and complaints

Once they have accepted instructions from a solicitor, experts are under a duty to provide an objective and independent opinion relating to the case.

The key to being an expert is maintaining independence. When giving evidence at court, the role is to assist the court. Any and all personal or professional relationships, business dealings and competing interests that might influence the expert's work must be fully advised to the solicitors at the start of each project. Experts should immediately withdraw if a conflict of interest arises.

Site visits or client meetings should first be discussed with the solicitor.

Experts should also provide a procedure for resolving any complaints, and respond quickly and appropriately if any complaint arises.

The Law Society of Scotland reserves the right to exclude any expert who has failed to adhere to the Code of Practice from any future edition of the Directory of Expert Witnesses.

This article provides only an overview of the Code of Practice. For a complete and comprehensive guide, please visit:

EXPERT WITNESS CVS – WHAT TO INCLUDE?

Experts vouching their qualifications and experience to a court should provide crisp, clear information rather than a lengthy, unstructured document, as a senior English judge has recently commented

The section on qualifications and experience in expert court reports often causes concern. While some experts worry that they don't have enough material, others find it hard to cut material out.

Paragraph 16(h) of the Law Society of Scotland's Code of Practice specifically states that the report should cover "a summary of the expert's qualifications and experience". The term "qualifications" is probably intended to be interpreted broadly, to include all relevant expertise, whether from academic qualifications or practical experience. In England & Wales, the procedural rules mandate the inclusion of qualifications.

How to approach this section of your report?

There are two principles to follow:

(i) Relevance

The court must know whether or not the expert is competent (or "qualified") to give opinion evidence on the issue before it; this part of your report is where you demonstrate that competence and qualification.

Your focus must therefore be on the issues before the court. The court is not going to be interested in the entirety of your career to date, but only the relevant knowledge, skills, experience, training, or education you may have which can help the court reach a decision on those issues.

(ii) Clarity of information

Comments by the President of the Family Court, Sir Andrew McFarlane, in Re C [2023] EWHC 345 (Fam) related to the issue of an unregulated psychologist giving expert evidence, but the principles can be applied across the board by all expert witnesses. Although this is an England & Wales case, the comments can usefully be applied in Scotland too.

One lesson he draws, at para 97, is: "the need for clarity as to an expert's qualification and/or experience. The more diffuse and unstructured a CV, the less effective it is likely to be in transmitting information crisply and clearly. In this regard, lawyers, magistrates and judges are lay readers. They need to be able to see with clarity, and in short form, the underlying basis for an individual's expertise".

Sir Andrew identifies registered membership of the relevant regulatory or professional body as a "reliable, one-stop, method of authentication" which can be taken as "sufficient qualification to offer an opinion within that field of practice".

That is, of course, only the starting point and specific further knowledge may additionally be necessary.

Where such additional information is needed, it should be set out "shortly and clearly", to identify any "formal qualifications, posts held and published work" (see para 102 of the judgment).

Do:

- Focus on the issues for the court.
- Tailor your CV accordingly.
- Set out relevant formal qualifications and registration status first.
- Think about other relevant experience:
  - authorship of relevant published papers or textbooks;
  - relevant training or teaching which you have delivered;

- relevant studies you have carried out; and/or
- relevant panels or committees you have sat on.
- Consider including a short narrative section, describing your current practice and how frequently you deal with the same issue which is now before the court.
- Include relevant qualifications as an expert witness, e.g. the Cardiff University Bond Solon Certificate or the Aberdeen University Bond Solon Certificate, once you have attained them.

Don't:

- Include everything you have ever done.
- Include hobbies, interests and prizes.
- Run over more than one or maximum two pages.
- Include every publication ever written.
- State how many times you have given evidence as an expert witness.

Remember, there is a difference between a court report CV and a marketing CV to send out to instructing solicitors. Your marketing CV can certainly contain everything that you would put in the court version, and the following:

(i) CPD in your area of expertise.

(ii) CPD as an expert witness (particularly vital for healthcare experts in light of the requirement of the Academy of Medical Royal Colleges that those who carry out expert witness work "should" undertake expert witness training).

(iii) How many reports you have written for court.

(iv) How many times you have given evidence in court.

(v) Any positive comments from judges on your evidence.

(vi) The balance of instructions you receive from claimants or applicants or the prosecution and from the defence or respondents.

Above all, remember that you are aiming your report CV at the judge, to assure them that you are qualified to give your opinion on the issues before them.

If in doubt, keep it short, relevant, and clear.
